What happens to my story after a private session?

What happens to my story after a private session?

Private Session

A private session is where you tell your story to a Commissioner in private.

Confidential

Only the people who work at the Disability Royal Commission and anyone you ask to come will know you shared your story.

Using names

In a private session you can use the name of an organisation or a person.

Privacy

If you share your story in a private session the Disability Royal Commission will keep your story private.

How am I protected?

If you share your story at a private session there are laws to protect you.

When am I not protected?

If you talk about your story in public or on social media, the same laws will not protect you.

After a private session

You can decide if you want to keep your story private.

If you want to share your story with someone else, you may want to talk to us first.
